

Spring into 10% Savings with Fertilization

If you can answer 'Yes' to any of the following questions, your trees and shrubs are prime candidates for supplemental fertilization applications.

- Did the color of your leaves change during the summer (pale green to yellow)?
- Have you noticed reduced leaf size, premature fall coloration, or leaf drop?
- Were there recent construction projects on or near your property (street repaving, new curbs, underground cable)?
- Have you raked leaves from your yard rather than mowing them into mulch compost that replenishes much needed organic material to the soil?

So what is your next step?

Tree and shrub fertilization is especially important for urban and suburban soils that have been altered due to construction. Urban soils tend to be heavily compacted, poorly drained and low in organic matter. Even where soils have not been affected, fertilization may be needed as part of a maintenance program to increase plant vitality or to improve root or top growth. Proper treatment involves utilizing proven amounts of hearty nutrients being applied at the right time of the year in order to avoid any further damage to your trees and plants.

Let one of our certified arborists evaluate your landscape and recommend the best maintenance plan for all of your trees and shrubs. Contact us today to set up an appointment and receive this introductory 10% off spring fertilization service special.
